

About the Author

Rick Bivins is now retired after serving in the United States Air Force for 20 years and working another 25 years in the computer software field. While still working he took a correspondence course with the Institute of Children's Literature where he found his skills at writing for children. His passion now is to write children's books to inspire creativity and imagination.